GENTLE SHOWERS. BY H E. E.

Showers, showers, gentle showers, Falling when the cucked sings; Bringing to this world of our s Many bright and previous things Well ye fall, oh gontle showers, Tears of boaven! giving birth To a thousand berts and flowers. Ye make glad the smiling earth-Showers, showers, gentle showers!

Showers, showers, gentle showers! Gushing from the stricken heart, When the cloud of sorrow lowers, Ye relieve its despest smart. Human toars, and heaven's showers, Never oun they fall in valu ; But give life to thoughts and flowers, And rejoice the heart again Showers, showers, gentle showers!

She's my cousin, so you see, She can't fall in love with me; That I always keen in mind. And, indeed, I've always kissed her, As you would a little sister, Just so that she Might think me Kind.

A Good Ware .- In the eighty-fourth year of his age, Dr. Calvin Chapin wrote of his wife, who was a daughter of the of his wife, who was a daughter of the younger President Edwards—"My do-mestic enjoyments have been, perhaps, as and that said defendant could not be found. near perfection as the human condition permits. She made my home the pleasantest spot on earth to me." How many a poor fellow would be saved from suicide, from the penitentiary, and the gallows, every year, had he been blessed with such a wife. "She made home the pleasantest sp t to me on earth." What a grand tribute to that woman's love and piety and common sense. Rather different was the testimony of an old man, some three years ago, in the Tombs' yard of New York city: "I didn't intend to kill my wife; but she was a very aggravating Let each wife inquire, "which wife am 19"

SPREAD YOURSELVES .- We have no doubt many of our readers have refrained from using the above phrase, adjudging it vulgar. It is not so, however, for the immortal

your actors by the scroll; Masters, spread yourselves "

When Dr. Franklin was making his first experiments in electricity he wished to try its effects on a hen, and while bolding the wire to the bird it struggled, and he received the whole charge himself. On recovering from the shock, he good-naturedly remarked that instead of killing a hen by electricity he had nearly killed a goose !
